Dr A. JAMES MB, BS, MRCP, MRCPsych, MPhil, MA(OXFORD).

I am a Consultant Adolescent Psychiatrist at the Highfield Unit, Oxford, UK, and Honorary Senior Lecturer, University of Oxford. I have longstanding experience of therapeutic and research work with adolescents. I have undertaken longitudinal neuroimaging research, and have been involved in setting up collaborative research networks including a multi-centre international project in stem cell work. I have been involved with the dialectical behaviour therapy (DBT) service for adolescents since its inception over 12 years ago, and I have audited and published outcomes. I am an active collaborator in ENIGMA (a multinational imaging consortium in early-onset psychosis, OCD and laterality studies). My current interest is in treatment-resistant depression in adolescents.
